St. Louis Kaplan Feldman Holocaust Museum

Final Public Program of 2025

On December 4th, the child of two Holocaust survivors will take audiences on a moving musical journey through Vienna — from the city's golden age of culture to the dark years of persecution. Catherine Kautsky's performance will highlight the music that made Vienna world-renowned, before shifting to the hauntingly beautiful compositions of Jewish composers such as Schoenberg, Hanns Eisler, Gideon Klein, and Erich Wolfgang Korngold.

Blending live performance, evocative imagery, and deeply personal storytelling, Kautsky shares her family's journey from Vienna after the 1938 Anschluss to their new home in St. Louis. This unforgettable evening will illuminate the enduring power of music, memory, and resilience.

The night concludes with a reception with Ms. Kautsky in the Museum lobby complete with Viennese-inspired desserts!

As the Thanksgiving holiday approaches, we turn to thoughts of sharing food and memories with family and loved ones. While our museum tells a difficult history, we also highlight moments of hope and resilience through the stories of our Survivors and their families.

This serving spoon is a family heirloom of Charlotte Stern, who immigrated from Germany in 1938. As she was unable to bring money with her, she instead brought valuables, primarily wedding gifts of her mother, Frieda Gumprich Stern. This spoon is a Spaten design with "S.S." initials on the handle. It was manufactured by Koch & Bergfeld, Bremen, Germany.

Following the Road to Liberation

Last month, the Museum led a group of dedicated volunteers, donors, and community leaders on our Road to Liberation journey; a 13-day immersive experience across three countries with 34 participants. Designed to connect St. Louis stories to the historical landscapes of Europe, the program traced a powerful path from Paris to Normandy, through Amsterdam, and culminating in Germany. Along the way, we explored the intertwined themes of liberation, Nazi oppression, D-Day heroism, camp imprisonment, and enduring Jewish resilience.

What made this journey truly transformative were the voices of St. Louis survivors, rescuers, and liberators whose stories echoed through the very places we visited. Participants heard testimony from St. Louis descendants of survivors and stood in spaces where families once lived, struggled, and rebuilt their lives. New friendships were forged, institutional partnerships strengthened, and the Museum deepened its knowledge and reach far beyond our walls.

This trip marks only the beginning of the Museum's expanding travel program as we continue to foster meaningful connections, broaden awareness, and extend the impact of our mission across the globe.
